MORE THAN A MEAL

For families facing cancer, something as simple as a warm meal can make a difficult day a little easier.

For the past two and a half years, Jackie and her family have made an 80-mile round trip every three weeks for her husband's cancer treatments, often spending six or seven hours away from home.

One treatment day, money was tight and Jackie hadn't had time to pack food for herself and her 14-year-old son. They knew they could turn to Gilda's Club. Staff warmed up one of the freezer meals available to participants, and the two sat down together for a warm bowl of goulash.

It may seem like a small thing, but that meal meant Jackie didn't have to worry about how she would buy lunch or make sure her son had something to eat during an already difficult day.

"Gilda's has always been there for us. Here, it's like we're family." — Jackie

Meals, snacks and a welcoming place to sit give families one less thing to worry about during long days of treatment. Your support helps ensure families like Jackie's always have somewhere to turn —at no cost to them.

Sometimes a meal is more than food. It's comfort, relief and a reminder that you're not facing cancer alone.
